Garrison | Side Table - Stool

The original Garrison is a sculptural iron casting designed as both stool and side table. Crafted from two tons of recycled rebar, the collection comprised a limited edition of 102 pieces. The material was sourced from the 2015 dismantling of its namesake, the Garrison Bridge near Toronto’s Fort York.

Conceived through a dedicated algorithm, the Garrison balances weight, strength, and manufacturability within a singular form. The inaugural 51 pieces featured a bronze-coated tip, which later inspired a further edition: 30 in solid mirror-polished bronze, seven in solid green-patinated bronze, and 10 in solid blue-patinated bronze.

Paying tribute to central and eastern Canada’s industrial roots, the Garrison is sand-cast using a traditional method employed in heavy machinery manufacturing. The process produces subtle surface variations that give each piece a distinct tactile character.

In 2026, STACKLAB introduced an open edition of the Garrison in satin bronze, mirror-polished bronze, satin aluminum, and patinated aluminum. This expanded offering extends the material language of the piece while preserving the integrity of its original form and structural logic.

The Garrison is suitable for indoor and outdoor use.
